The Institute of St Anselm has been running for almost 40 years with great success training many leaders and formators in the church. We are not a therapeutic centre. Those who need therapeutic care will not be helped by the Institute. Participants need to be functioning people balanced and integrated with a true potential for leadership. The Institute helps them to look at their own history and discover how they can integrate their past sufferings and struggles which we all have by the very fact we are human!

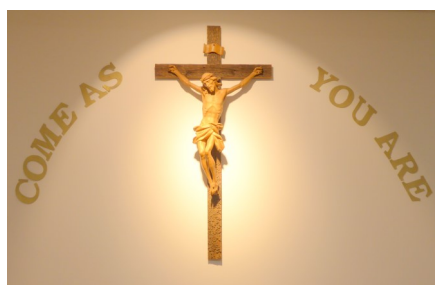

The Institute is here to offer those who are considered potential leaders and formators assistance in developing their leadership and formation personality.

The Institute of St Anselm was founded under the auspices of the late Cardinal Basil Hume OSB by Father Leonhard Kofler MHM. Whilst still offering highly appreciated lectures and support in many other ways in the Institute, Fr.Len is now 87 with a serious heart condition. He is looking for a congregation that will invest personnel into the St Anselm's and take St Anselm's forward into the future, not fossilising it in the present, but rather developing it and leading it forward, for the Universal Church. To take full responsibility for the Institute as part of their Apostolate. We are looking for a commitment from the congregation and above all personnel, the Institute is not in need of money as the programme is viable and we have no debts. Those working at the Institute offer every support for as long as they are given good health by the Lord.

St Anselm's offers an innately practical and experiential programme. If we wish to train our people to become lecturers in philosophy and theology etc. we grant them anything from 4 to 6 years to train, or maybe more! Today when our candidates mostly come from homes without a solid human or spiritual basis, we need to train thoroughly those responsible to enable them to help formatees to build a solid spiritual and human base which will ensure that the future of congregations and diocese are well resourced to fulfil their mission in the church. Which is easier; to stand up and give a lecture in philosophy, Scripture, theology, etc. or to accompany candidates on a sensitive and delicate journey towards a profound spiritual and integrated human personality?

This programme has great potential to be developed for future educators, carers, law enforcers, etc. also in parishes for struggling parents and pastoral work.
